

2012: Resetting the Count Maya Opinions on 2012

Marco A. Pacheco:

I think that 2012 is an opportunity for many of us to enter into a new phase of change, of reasoning, of understanding, not only about ourselves, but also about our communities. I think there have been many things that have happened for centuries, like wars and the exploitation of our Mother Earth. There has been too much pillage of minerals and such, and our actions have affected the ecology of our planet. This is our opportunity to rekindle the respect we should have for ourselves and also for our Mother Earth, so that we can survive as human beings, and as communities, in order to have a better future, not just for us but for our children.